How Can We Close The Gap Between Dental Education & Dental Practice?

Brief explanaiton of the Topic, The Aim and The Forum Rules:

Although translation of research into practice and closing the gap between theory and practice has always been a genuine concern for the health professions, in the last decade health professions witnessed dramatic changes concerning health education and provision of care, increasing this demand and also bringing out new professional concerns, challenges and opportunities. Thus, it seems that more efforts are needed to comply with the new circumstances and for implementation of evidence based care into practice and for translation of research (Greenlee RT, Coleman LA, Nelson AF, Selby JV. Partnerships in translation: advancing research and clinical care. The 14th Annual HMO Research Network Conference, April 13-16, 2008, Minneapolis, Minnesota. Clin Med Res. 2008 Dec;6 (3-4):109-12).

Within this context, the collaboration between the two important bodies in the oral health arena the namely the NDAs and the dental

We drafted a statement.

DRAFT STATEMENT

Draft Statement

Collaboration Between National Dental Associations and Dental Faculties

Establishing professional collaborations and partnerships are important to overcome the existing global oral health challenges and to meet the expectations from the dental profession.

The FDI-European Regional Organization (ERO) believes that professional partnerships and collaborations have clear benefits for the oral health, general health and the well-being of the individual patients and the public at large.

When the ;

- gap between theory and practice
- increasing demand for evidence-based and quality care
- implementation of new treatment modalities and technologies into practice
- expectations of the individual patients and the public are concerned, the collaboration between National Dental Associations and the Dental Faculties is clearly of utmost importance.

According to the studies conducted by ERO¹ , the current level and extent of their collaboration is not at the desired level and thus, ERO strongly recommends for a further improved collaboration between National Dental Associations and the Dental Faculties.
